THE SUPERSTRUCTURE.

The McKissick Opera House.
A Magnificent Enterprise.

THE PRIDE OF THE STATE.

The McKissick Opera House, built by Uncle Jake McKissick, is a structure that Reno might well be proud of. It is a magnificent building, built of brick, and was dedicated June 13, 1888. The opera house has a seating capacity for 900 people, is elegantly furnished throughout, and has the finest and most complete sets of scenery of any theater between Chicago and San Francisco. Excellent judgment has been exercised in the construction of the interior of this theater. The entire auditorium is supplied with Kane & Co.'s reclining chairs, having a six-inch elevation, thus enabling the auditor to see as well in the last row as in the first. Through the efforts of Major C. W. Booton, the affable manager of the McKissick, who was instrumental in having the theater built here, the public are indebted to for this splendid opera house.

The Opera House Dry Goods Store

On the first floor of this magnificent building is located the Opera House Dry Goods Store, the proprietor of which is Major C. W. Booton. This gentleman has been established here since last May, and from the start has done a phenomenal business. The fact of the matter is, trade at his establishment increased far beyond Major Booton's most sanguine expectations, so that he has already been compelled to enlarge his present quarters and add more departments to his already immense stock. The trade of this house covers a vast deal of territory, and orders are being received daily from all parts of the State; so that the firm contemplates adding a wholesale store to the retail in the near future. The secret of Major Booton's success can easily be guessed; he is a practical business man and received his first business experience at the age of ten years, when he started out with a bundle of merchandise to make his fortune. It is said of him in San Francisco business circle that a shrewd or closer buyer than Major Booton can not be found on the Pacific coast. The Opera House Dry Goods Store always looks everything that the name indicates. It is indeed one of the busiest places in our busy city, and there are reasons for this. One reason is the popularity of the energetic, able and gentlemanly proprietor, Maj. Booton, and many other reasons may be epitomized in the one word—bargains. Another reason is that he sells at one price—for cash—thus enabling him to compete with San Francisco prices. This house has one of the finest stocks of dry goods in the State, all new goods and novelties constantly arriving.

A SHOE DEPARTMENT

Has been recently added to this popular store, and all grades of ladies' and misses' shoes are carried, including the famous Nolan Brothers' handmade shoes. Major Booton will handle nothing but leather, no matter how cheap, and his patrons need not look for paper soles and other frauds in his goods for they will not find them. The Opera Dry Goods Store is always filled from floor to ceiling with dry goods of all kinds, including dress goods of all varieties, colors and prices, men's and boys' clothing, gents' fur-furnishing goods, cloaks, wraps, hats and everything usually carried in a well-bought and well-selected stock.

In the employ of Major Booton is Mr. W. R. Lett, an experienced dry goods man, lately from New York City. Mr. Lett has been connected with the leading establishments of the Metropolis and is as well posted in his line as can be found on the coast.

THE DEPOT HOTEL

liquor houses in the State. Mr. Thyes is the sole agent for the State of Nevada and northern California for Schmidt & Co.'s sarsaparilla and iron water, which he ships direct from Stockton, Cal., to his customers, or sells at Reno, freight added. This firm is also agent for the famous Idaho natural mineral water, from the Idaho soda springs, and Idaho ginger ale, manufactured from the Idaho mineral water. Mr. Thyes is also agent for the celebrated Sierra bottled beer, from Boca, Cal., which is considered the best bottle beer on the coast, and equal to any Eastern beer in the market. One of the main features of this firm and an important advantage that they have over competitors is, that they are agents direct from the manufacturers, enabling them to give their customers the benefit of the manufacturer's profit and also the benefit of freight rates. At the firm's headquarters, located in the First National Bank building, can be found one of the largest, best filled and most beautiful sideboards in Nevada. Here our most prominent citizens congregate and revive their drooping spirits and are always sure to be warmly greeted by the gentlemanly proprietor and his able assistants.

JOHN WIELAND BREWING CO.

M. L. Cohoon, Agent.

In giving a review of the city's industries it would be incomplete without mentioning the well-known "John Wieland Brewing Company," which has an agency at Reno, under the management of S. L. Cohoon. This celebrated beer is so well known all over the State that it seems almost unnecessary to enumerate its different good qualities. Mr. Cohoon has only had charge of the Reno agency since last December, but has, in this comparatively short time, built up a wonderful trade. The beer vaults are located east of the depot and have a storage capacity of five car-loads of beer. This agency is also supplied with side-tracks and switch, enabling them to unload their beer direct into the vault without loss of time. Mr. Cohoon has now for sale all the well-known brands of the Wieland Brewing Company's beer, either in kegs or bottles, which he ships to any part of the State, this being a State agency. Mr. Cohoon is an old resident of Nevada, having lived in the State for the past sixteen years. He was elected a representative of the State. Right here in Reno we have a model brewery, conducted by Mr. George Becker, an old experienced and practical brewer. A brewery where the pure article is manufactured, and no adulterations used in brewing. Mr. Becker is an old citizen of Nevada, having established the Washoe Brewery in Washoe City in 1864. He has been located here since the spring of 1870, and built up a fine trade, shipping beer to all parts of the State. A GAZETTE commercial reporter, in search of information regarding the manufacture of beer, visited the establishment of Mr. Geo. Becker and was shown through the premises by the courteous proprietor. The first place visited was the brewery. The building occupies a lot 50x140 feet, and is supplied with all modern facilities for brewing beer. At present the brewery has a capacity for brewing 300 gallons of beer per day, but Mr. Becker has in contemplation, some important improvements in a short time, which will increase the capacity of the brewery. Adjoining the brewery, Mr. Becker operates a soda-water factory, and has a siphon plant with a capacity of over 600 dozen bottles per day. In addition to the soda-water factory, this factory also manufactures ginger ale, cider, sarsaparilla, etc. It will be seen that there is some manufacturing going on in Reno. The machinery in this department, is all modern, and under the direction of an experienced mechanic. Back of the soda-water factory, Mr. Becker has his ice-house, with a storage capacity of 130 tons of ice. The next place visited was the elegant saloon of Mr. Becker's, located in front of the brewery, on Commercial Row. Here the reporter, at the invitation of Mr. Becker, partook of a fresh glass of beer. The writer is a special on beer, having visited nearly all the large breweries in this country and in England, and will give Mr. Becker the credit of brewing as fine a glass of beer as has been his pleasure to offer.

W. M. KOX, INSURANCE.

This gentleman has been located in Reno for the past sixteen years, and has been in the insurance business for thirteen years. He represents all the leading fire insurance companies, and also deals in real estate of all kinds, in addition to insurance and real estate. Mr. Knox is also agent for the leading makes of pianos and organs, and does an extensive business in this line. Mr. Knox can be found at his office, No. 30, Virginia street.

THE BOTTLING DEPARTMENT.

The bottling department is quite an establishment of itself, being supplied with all modern improvements for bottling beer and shipping facilities. The capacity in this department is seventy-two dozen bottles per day. From the bottling department we enter the

OFFICE AND SALESROOM.

Here can be found samples of beer, imported and domestic wines, liquors, and bookkeeper for Mr. Cohoon, showed the reporter through the establishment and gave him much interesting information. Last, but not least, this article would not be complete without mentioning the elegant saloon adjoining the bottling works, at the corner opposite the Opera House. No expense has been spared in fitting up this elegant resort and it would be considered first-class in any large city.

The saloon is supplied with billiard tables, electric lights, private card rooms, electric bells, etc. The bar is stocked with the finest, served by polite bar-tenders and one is always sure to find at this establishment a fresh glass of the celebrated "Wieland" lager beer.

THE BANK OF NEVADA.

Among Reno's solid institutions can be named the Bank of Nevada. It was organized May 24, 1887, and has always been held in the highest esteem, and enjoys the confidence of the community. The bank's capital stock fully subscribed, is $300,000. Its officers and directors are among the best known and substantial citizens of Nevada. The officers are: M. D. Foley, President; M. E. Ward, Vice-President; M. Meyer, cashier; R. S. Osburn, assistant-cashier. The directors are: Daniel Palmer, San Francisco; M. D. Foley, Eureka; George Russell, Elko; M. E. Ward, J. N. Evans, C. Powning, L. Abrahams, Reno.

This bank transacts a general banking business, buys and sells on commission mining and other stocks, and are also agents for several first-class insurance companies. The officers and directors of the Nevada feel flattered by their increasing business with the public in general and hope by conservative management and liberal rates for a continued increase in the future.

THE PACIFIC BREWERY.

George Becker, Proprietor.

Decidedly the greatest beer-producing countries in the world are Germany and Austria. The manufacture of the national beverage and its consumption is a matter of investigation and comment for every traveler who has visited the United States.

Many have gone behind the commercial features of the industry, and have seen the great importance of the personal superintendence of Mrs. Barnes, a lady who understands house-keeping to perfection, and who makes it a study to look after the comfort of her guests. This hotel is also supplied with elegant suites, parlors and commodious offices, suitable for professional purposes.

A FIRST-CLASS FAMILY HOTEL.

It has been Mr. Barnes' aim to conduct a nice quiet house, where families can feel at home and at the same time have all the comforts of a home. There is no bar connected with the Golden Eagle. The kitchen is in charge of an able cook, who has been with the house for many years. The dining-room is a spacious hall with accommodation for over one hundred guests, and the steady patronage of this popular hotel amply proves that the table is set first-class. This house has been recently refitted and re-furnished, and will compare favorably with any Eastern hotel. It is supplied with large sample rooms for the convenience of commercial travelers, has hot and cold baths, and in fact everything that goes to make up a modern hotel. Mr. Frank Bailes, the proprietor's son, has charge of the management of the house, and although a young man, has proved himself a capable and energetic business man.

RICHARD HERZ.

This wholesale and retail jewelry establishment has been in Reno for the past four years, and from the start have done a very large trade, gaining the thorough confidence of all their customers. Mr. Herz is a practical watch-maker and jeweler, having been in the business for twenty years, and has been in this State for eighteen years.

The firm makes a specialty of watch repairing, engraving and diamond setting. Mr. Herz has broken the record in watch repairing in this section, having repaired over fifteen thousand watches in this State. This house is the only one in the State that does all kinds of engraving, no matter what the design may be. Diamonds, both unset and set goods, of all sizes are carried, and having at all times complete line of mountings, one is able to get any sort of diamond jewelry mounted to order on short notice. In watches this firm has every grade of American watch made, both in gentlemen's and ladies' sizes, in either gold or silver cases. In jewelry the stock carried is so extensive that it must be seen to be appreciated.

L. LEWIS.

The well-known store of L. Lewis, located on Commercial Row, is a cosmopolitan as it can be, for the simple reason that every body can find just what they want here. The store is filled to overflowing with new and second hand furniture, hardware, crockery, china and glassware. Library lamps, fancy goods, wall paper and bedding and in fact all kinds of house furnishing goods. Mr. Lewis carries the most complete stock in Reno, and has never been known to be undersold.

BALLEY & DERBY, Wholesale and Retail Butchers.

This well-known firm have been located here for many years, and are leaders in their line of business in Nevada. Messrs. Balley & Derby have two first class meat markets in this city, their main establishment being located on Virginia street, and known as the Truckee Market. This market will compare favorably with any similar establishment in San Francisco, and stocked full with the choicest meats that can be found anywhere. The Reno Market, located on Commercial Row, is also a well equipped meat-market, where every thing that the market affords, can be found.

POLESON & WELLS.

This firm is composed entirely of men who have achieved a greater success in so short a time. An attempt to describe their immense stock would with the best brands of all kinds of imported and domestic wines, liquors and cigars. A special feature is made of its fine old whisky, which cannot be equalled in Reno. Bass' imported ale, Guiner's stout, all standard mineral waters, etc., kept constantly in stock, with experienced and courteous "druggists" to fill any order that may be given them. In order to accommodate his many guests, Mr. White is compelled to enlarge his present quarters and will in a few days commence to build an additional story, with a mansard roof, to the Palace Hotel building. When completed, the hotel will be thoroughly refitted, and re-furnished and will have ample accommodation for one hundred guests.

TRUCKEE LIVERY AND FEED STABLE.

T. H. HYMERS, PROPRIETOR.

This elegant livery and feed stable is located at the corner of Sierra and Second street. Mr. Hymers has been established in Reno since the year 1868, and has been in this State for the past twenty-nine years. This is undoubtedly the best equipped stable of any in Nevada. Mr. Hymers' specialties are first-class turn-outs, and the finest saddle horses to be found anywhere.

5 O'CLOCK EDITION.

THE people have spoken and the lottery scheme is dead, and we offer our most hearty congratulations. When the promoters of the scheme tried to change the organic law of the State in a month's time, and that under cover—when they tried by intimidating threats to virtually scalp every one who opposed them—they carried it too far, and they have been justly rebuked at the polls. The election was fair, and more than fair for the promoters of the lottery, because it was called right in the dead of Winter, and on short notice, and such a decisive vote out of the small number who voted can leave no show for dissatisfaction. Again we congratulate the people on their disposition of the lottery.

MRS. HARRISON, wife of the President-elect, is a sensible woman. She has made the protection theory practical by declaring her intention to patronize home dressmakers instead of sending her money to modistes in foreign countries. Mrs. Harrison goes so far as to say that American "artists" in dress designing and making have so much advanced in the last few years that their productions, in her opinion, are quite as tasteful and generally as good as those of the Parisians. At any rate they are good enough in her opinion for the President's wife, and what is good enough for her ought to satisfy any American woman.

THE land offices have received instructions which will give parties living at a distance a great deal of trouble. The officers are instructed that where money and papers are received and the papers are incomplete, or from any cause the money cannot at the time be applied, that the money shall be immediately returned—or, in other words, that no money shall be received until the government has heard that before from

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, and Sir Henry James, counsel for the Times, here announced that they had agreed not to produce the documents which were the subject of the discussion on Friday last.

The Government paid the witness £2,000 between February, 1883, and August, 1870. He spent every cent of this for public purposes; for instance, he took John O'Neill's I. O. U. for £70 to save his reputation and keep him from becoming a defaulter, and this action gave witness a strong hold on O'Neill. He had spent more than he had received in the public service. He had made no arrangements for future rewards. The N. C. organization, which numbered 33,000 members, deliberately and knowingly supported the dynamite policy. In the convention of 1881, 162 of the delegates present favored the use of dynamite. The convention held in Madison Square Garden, in New York, in 1884, advocated a dynamite policy, and Sullivan, Lomax, Cronan, Smythe, Scanlon, Hick, Furlong, and Crane were present at that convention.

Distracting Accident.

EL PASO, Feb. 11.—At Ysleta, ten miles from here, an accident occurred yesterday afternoon, which cost five persons their lives. Durley, Tinkey and Alice Jones, children of R. H. Jones, editor of the Ysleta Report, whose ages ranged from 8 to 15, and a lad named Witte, aged 10 years, together with two other children, were playing in the sand cavern banks of the Rio Grande, which they had converted into a playhouse, when the quicksand fell in, submerging the three first named. The others made their escape, and ran screaming to the house and gave the alarm. Jones went immediately to the scene, and rushed in to save his children, when the top of the cave fell, smothering him and one other. The bodies were recovered and buried to-day. Jones was formerly United States Consul at Chihuahua, Mexico.

At the Combie.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 12.—Governor Humphrey of Kansas has selected St. Louis as the place, and March 12th as the time, for the holding of an Interstate Convention to investigate the alleged beef and pork combine. The convention will be composed of joint committees of Senators and five representatives from the Legislatures of Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Arkansas, Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and Wyoming. Several of the States have already been heard from favorably, and there is little doubt but that all of them will be represented. The Governor of Pennsylvania has expressed a desire to have that State represented, although Pennsylvania was not invited to join in the movement.

If all the people of Ormsby county do not hereafter give the Nevada Tribune a cordial pecuniary support they are not what they claim to be.

LeCARON TESTIFIES.

An Anti-Trust Movement in the Western States.

MURDERED BY A BURGLAR.

Five Persons Killed by the Caving of a Sand Bank.

O'BRIEN AGAIN AERAIGNED

The Arkansas Assassination To Be Investigated.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES TO THE GAZETTE.

Still on the Stand.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The cross-examination of LeCaron was continued today. He said he had visited Europe five times since 1867; sometimes in a professional capacity and sometimes unprofessionally. He reported himself to the authorities on each occasion except in 1867. Neither O'Kelly nor Parnell had ever written him. The Fenians expelled O'Kelly, the witness said, because he had joined with Parnell in an open movement. O'Leary denounced O'Kelly. Witness believed O'Leary was a violent opponent of the League, and continuing, witness said that he received the sealed packages from Devoy and O'Leary to Egan in Paris in 1881, and acknowledged that the security of the seals alone prevented him from opening the packages. He again saw Egan in America in 1883. Later Egan introduced him to Parnell in the lobby of the House of Commons. He conversed with Parnell and was complimented by him on his work. The Irish Republican Brotherhood was then opposed to Parnell so far as home organization was concerned. Parnell complained of this opposition and said that the home and sister organizations would have been crippled had they not obtained assistance from America.

At Parnell's request, witness saw Devoy and Sullivan and two others in America. He did not write the result of his conversation with them to Parnell because he had not been requested to; moreover, Egan had instructed witness to write to him. Witness conversation with Parnell had no reference to Egan. The most important part of Parnell's conversation concerned his views as a revolutionist. He declared that he did not see why an insurrection should be unnecessary, but had heard that before from

Sir Charles Russell, counsel for the Parnellites, and Sir Henry James, counsel for the Times, here announced that they had agreed not to produce the documents which were the subject of the discussion on Friday last.

The Government paid the witness £2,000 between February, 1883, and August, 1870. He spent every cent of this for public purposes; for instance, he took John O'Neill's I. O. Another Trial.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—Wm. O'Brien was taken from Tralee to Killarney to-day, where he was arraigned for violating the Crimes act. O'Brien looked haggard. When the case was called he asked for an adjournment, on the grounds that he had not been able to consult his counsel. The court granted the request and set the hearing for Thursday. The Government has posted a proclamation along the route from Tralee to Killarney, forbidding the gathering of crowds.

The resolution provides further that if, in the opinion of the Committee on Elections in this House, there is no authority of existing law to prosecute and carry on a contest under the circumstances described, then the committee is authorized to report by a bill or otherwise such act or resolution as may be necessary to accomplish the object stated. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Elections.

Congressional Matters.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The conference on the land grant forfeiture bill had another meeting to-day. At the suggestion of Plumb, the Senate bill was taken up for a detailed consideration, and about one-third of it was gone over before the conference adjourned. Although it would appear from this proceeding that an understanding had been reached that would result in an ultimate agreement, there was nothing said which would warrant the assumption that Stone had abandoned his intention to insist upon the adoption of an amendment to the Senate bill providing for a test case in the Supreme Court to determine the power of Congress to declare forfeitures.

The Senate bill to enable the President to protect the interests of the United States in Panama was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and leave was granted the committee to report at any time. The House then resumed the consideration of the Smalls Elliott contested election case.

A long political discussion ensued as to the rights and wrongs in the South, etc., the chief speech being made by O'Farrell of Virginia and was participated in by Rowell of Illinois, Fuller of Iowa and others. After the talk had been in progress for some hours, the question of limiting the debate came up and a limit was fixed at six hours for each side, including the time already occupied.

SENATE.

Among the Senate bills reported from the committee and placed on the calendar was one to provide for the enforcement of the quarantine laws, and for the establishment of a National Board of Health.

The following House bill was taken from the calendar and passed: Granting the right of way to the Pima Land and Water Co. across the Fort Lowell Military Reservation, in Arizona. The Senate then proceeded to executive business. Within five minutes the executive business was transacted, and the legislative business was resumed. Evans gave notice that as soon as the Naval Appropriation bill is disposed of he would ask the Senate to consider the resolution reported from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, as to the outrages in Washington County, Texas, and directing that committee to revise the existing laws regulating the election of the members of Congress.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the pending question being Chandler's amendment to strike out the words requiring a new cruising monitor to be constructed of a type and under the plans and specifications of Thomas of Illinois.

In an executive session of the Senate this afternoon the Committee on Agriculture favorably reported the nomination of Norman J. Colman, to be Secretary of Agriculture. Objection was made by Republican Senators to the consideration of this time, and the Democratic Senators then objected to a discussion on the nomination, and under the rule, it went over until the next executive session.

It is understood the nomination will be confirmed however, when it again comes before the Senate. The nominations of Assistant-Secretary of the Treasury to be Civil Service Commissioner, in the place of Edgerton, and First-Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson to be Judge of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, will be subject to the general rule adopted by a majority of the Senate respecting political nominations.

The objection to Stevenson's appointment was based on the fact that he had not been nominated by the Senate.

A PERFECT HOME.

A Wife and Mother Who Created an Early Paradise.

The late Helen Hunt wrote as follows:

The most perfect home I ever saw was a little house into the sweet incense of whose fires went no costly things. A thousand dollars served as a year's living for father, mother and three children. But the mother was crowded—parquet, dress circle, gallery, and even the entries had their share of patronage.

A Smooth Mirror.

He gazed around the cheerful and comfortable-looking apartments; then, addressing the widow, he said:

" Your husband's been dead over a year now?"

" Yes," she answered with a sigh; " over a year."

" I remember reading his obituary, and I thought it contained a misstatement of facts."

" A misstatement of facts?"

" Yes." It said that he had gone to a country seat, and was impossible for him to find a more cheerful, more comfortable, and, with you in it, a more charming and desirable home than this."

The widow smiled sweetly; then he was accepted.

REMARKABLE VOYAGE.

How a Lewiston [Me.] Man Came from Ireland to New Jersey.

"How did you come over, Pat?" asked a Lewiston [Me.] Journal man of a well known laborer in the yard of one of the Lewiston mills after the story teller had done telling his story.

"I left home," he began, after expressions of disbelief, "when I was a lad, and my cousin says he to me, 'My boy, my boy,' and beggary I was sad, indeed. I didn't ship nor pay passage. I didn't register on the ship's books, for then days were before the steamship times. I just stowed myself in the ship's hold, until one day the churning and the thumping got that loud that I was scared and I came aloft to the deck of the ship."

After he got on deck, his narrative continues, the captain fell on him and gave him three lashings a day on his bare back, with unflinching regularity. This became so monotonous that one day he fell on his knees and pleaded for his life, and the captain had a big cash rolled up out of the ship's hold, its head knocked in, a lot of food put into it, Patrick put into the cask, the head replaced, and with only the bunghole open, the entire cask and contents rolled into the sea. For days he drifted on and on. "Had only the bunghole to look out of, and the great green waves all around me."

"How did you get water?"

"All the water I had to drink was what washed through the bunghole."

"And you like salt water?"

"Sure it's only a matter of taste." After Pat had drifted many days, and had begun to grow very fat from his inactivity, he one day felt the cask bumping on the shore, and pretty soon was washed up high and dry.

With a certain naivete, he says that he had by this time begun to be sort of frightened. He saw no signs of life until after several hours some cows and bulls came running over the sandbank, and they had come down to drink. At this point it is better not to question the taste of cows for salt water. One of the bulls came smelling around his cask, and playfully leaned up against the bunghole to rest. Pat put out his hand and quietly grabbed it by the tail's tail. Then he pulled it through, and bracing his feet against the head of the cask gave the tail a twist.

The bull awoke. He looked around. The cask had him. With a snort like the wrath of Jove he started. "Whew! How he ran. He bounded over fields and hedges, into the streets of the city, past wharves and docks, past the custom-house, up to the building, where, in weathering a street corner, he split the cask in twain over a lamp-post, and Pat stood forth from his prison house of weeds, a free man.

He was in New Jersey.

CHINESE TORTURES.

Plunging a Criminal Into Quicklime—Self-Immolation of a Priest.

Two horrible stories of torture come in the China mail, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. One was the case of a coolie at Swatow, who was accused of kidnapping. He was tortured in the ordinary Chinese way for two days, but he either wouldn't admit his guilt or had nothing to confess. He had no money to placate his tormentors, so on the third day he was triced up naked in the broiling sun and surrounded with a layer of quicklime. He was allowed no food, but any amount of drink, which the unfortunate wretch swallowed greedily under the tropical sun, and soon began to perspire freely. When the perspiration came in contact with the quicklime the victim suffered as though suddenly plunged in boiling water or thrown upon the red-hot coal. His screams could be heard for a long distance, and he expired as great agony as do the criminals who suffer what is called the "languishing process," the stripping of the body by keep alive until the loss of blood brings welcome death.

The other case is one of self-inflicted torture by a Buddhist monk of Wenchow, who rejoices in the name of Loftus and Profound. He had taken mendicant orders, allowing his hair and beard to grow, never washed, never combed. Finally he resolved to collect funds for a monastery, but after spending a year in begging on the streets he grew discouraged and vowed to seek "sitting transformation," that is, to seat himself in a furnace constructed of burning wood, and, setting fire to it, enter the enjoyment of Nirvana. Several cases of this self-immolation had recently occurred at Wenchow, and the curiosity to see another brought great crowds to the monastery, where the rite was to be performed. All preparations were made, the funeral pyre was built, when foreigners living near by sent an appeal to Chinezen, and the mandarin interrupted the ceremony.

The monk refused food, and entered the chest which was to have been his funeral pyre. In the morning he was found dead. Then his body was placed on the pyre and was consumed. The self-immolation of priests occurs in one of the richest districts of Chinkiang, noted for the scholarship of the literati and their bitter hostilities to foreigners.

The Portland Linseed mills started up for a steady run on the 11th inst.

The following from the pen of Mr. L. Bardell, editor of the Marion (Iowa) Pilot, will, we believe, be of interest to many of our readers. He says: "It is with pleasure that I certify to the real merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I have used it myself and find it most excellent, and especially for colds, croup and sore throat. It is safe and effective. For sale by Osburn & Shoemaker.

The decrease in the public debt in January amounted to $12,216,284.75.

"My little son, three years of age, was terribly afflicted with scrofula. His head was entirely covered with scrofulous sores, and his body showed marks of the disease. A few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured him." — W. J. Beckett, Hymera, Ind.

Mrs. Noon of Danville, Contra Costa County, Cal., was thrown from a buggy and killed Friday.

Jack-rabbits are quite ripe now in New Mexico, says a Santa Fe paper.

ABOUT HOTEL "CHIPS."

That Is the Name Given to Food That Is Left Over.

The steward of a big up-town hotel was chatting with a reporter a few days ago, says the New York Times, when the latter inadvertently inquired: "What do you do with the stuff you do not eat?"

"That," was the reply, "is something of a professional secret, but I know of no reason why it should remain so. The truth is, the 'chips,' as we term them, constitute a very considerable part of the hotel's income. There is not one of these big places in town where the proprietors manage to figure so closely that there are not several hundred pounds of perfectly good food left over. The result is that every hotel has a crowd of persons who may be called camp-followers, for they answer quite the same description as the great originals. Three times a week they come to me—as a rule on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays—and buy up the cooked meats that we have left over and which will not answer for pastry, stews, hashes, soups and the like. These they purchase for a quarter of the original price."

After he got on deck, his narrative continues, the captain fell on him and gave him three lashings a day on his bare back, with unflinching regularity. This became so monotonous that one day he fell on his knees and pleaded for his life, and the captain had a big cash rolled up out of the ship's hold, its head knocked in, a lot of food put into it, Patrick put into the cask, the head replaced, and with only the bunghole open, the entire cask and contents rolled into the sea. For days he drifted on and on. "Had only the bunghole to look out of, and the great green waves all around me."

"How did you get water?"

"All the water I had to drink was what washed through the bunghole."

"And you like salt water?"

"Sure it's only a matter of taste." After Pat had drifted many days, and had begun to grow very fat from his inactivity, he one day felt the cask bumping on the shore, and pretty soon was washed up high and dry.

With a certain naivete, he says that he had by this time begun to be sort of frightened. He saw no signs of life until after several hours some cows and bulls came running over the sandbank, and they had come down to drink. At this point it is better not to question the taste of cows for salt water. One of the bulls came smelling around his cask, and playfully leaned up against the bunghole to rest. Pat put out his hand and quietly grabbed it by the tail's tail. Then he pulled it through, and bracing his feet against the head of the cask gave the tail a twist.

The bull awoke. He looked around. The cask had him. With a snort like the wrath of Jove he started. "Whew! How he ran. He bounded over fields and hedges, into the streets of the city, past wharves and docks, past the custom-house, up to the building, where, in weathering a street corner, he split the cask in twain over a lamp-post, and Pat stood forth from his prison house of weeds, a free man.

He was in New Jersey.

The heroine of a story now running in a Southern paper is made to say: "I will do the washing this time, mother, for it is the greatest of delights to me." This is a wide departure from the realistic in fiction; in fact, it reaches the pinnacle of the ideal at a bound. As the work of the imagination the story will take high rank.
